The open plan living space, which enjoys a vaulted 5 m high ceiling leads onto the main South-facing terrace. The whole area, 127 m² in total, offers plenty of space for entertaining but also for everyday living, and steps lead down into a cozier snug area. The open-plan kitchen area leads to a separate pantry/laundry room tucked behind. A guest cloakroom is conveniently positioned by the front door.

The master bedroom suite is set away from all the other bedrooms and enjoys a double aspect overlooking the lake and onto a private terrace. Not only will this room benefit from a spacious master bathroom but a dressing room which extends further into what could be used as a private office.

The whole swimming pool area has been set away from the house. Another wonderful place for entertainment and relaxation, but also to allow for different areas but it would be possible to move the location of the pool to beside the villa as part of the process.

The garage and technical room (hidden into the hill behind the villa) is 70 m².

This tranquil location benefits from views and access to a picturesque lake. While the lake is public and to be used by everyone, it is rarely frequented other than by local friendly fishermen. With the clearest night skies, this valley is a stargazer's paradise.

The borehole benefits from a Grundfos solar pump.

The main structure of the house will be LSF construction and built by a local respected builder and this benefits from the most thermally and acoustically efficient build standard ensuring the villa will be cool in summer and warm in winter.
